Secret Plane Plans Stolen, Recovered

HOOVER BARES ESPIONAGE AT BOMBER PLANT

Reveals Theft of Data for Construction of Warplane at House Hearing.

FBI Chief Points to Acts of Spies as Reason for Need of Special Fund.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Plans for a U. S. army air corps bomber have been stolen from a west coast aircraft plant and quickly recovered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, it was revealed today.

The revelation was made by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover in testimony before a house appropriations sub-committee in support of a special $1,475,000 fund for emergency protection against spies and saboteurs. The committee published the testimony today.

Keeps Identity Secret.

Hoover presented only a few details of the incident and did not specify from which aircraft factory the plans had been stolen. He did not say whether the plans were those of the army's flying fortress or when the theft occurred.

"In one of the great airplane factories on the west coast, a very important plant," he said, "plans for one of the army bombers were stolen. We were successful in locating the man who stole them and in having the plans returned."

Hoover said that theft of the plans disclosed that the aircraft plant lacked a proper program to protect valuable military secrets from being disclosed. The FBI, he said, had installed a system which should prevent loss of any plans or other secret data in the future.

Has Special Investigators.

Hoover disclosed that the FBI has set up a special unit, known

Cold Wave's at End; That's Word Of Weatherman

The weatherman was sure today that the cold wave is on its way out.

He forecast light snow or freezing rain tonight followed by warmer temperatures. For Thursday he predicted rain and rising temperatures.

This morning the coldest temperature officially recorded in the city was three degrees above zero, shortly before sunrise. It was 18 degrees above yesterday's low of 15 below zero which gave Mansfield its coldest day, with one exception, in the past 15 years.

The state highway department said that all highways in the state are open and that driving conditions are greatly improved.

12-Acre Site Offered For CCC Camp

Chamber Asks U. S. to Move Conservation Unit to County.

A 12-acre site in the eastern part of Richland county was offered to the federal government today by the Chamber of Commerce for the location of a Civilian Conservation camp.

The offer was made to CCC officials in Columbus with the request that the government move one of its soil conservation units to this vicinity.

The communication said that a 12-acre site, offered rent free, was located 10 miles east of Mansfield and was topographically situated so as to facilitate sewage problems and that an ample water supply was available from either wells or city mains.

Recognizing the need for a soil conservation camp to aid farmers in this vicinity against soil erosion, the recommendation was made by the chamber's newly established agricultural committee as its first project.

Follows Ganyard's Request.

The request for the establishment of a CCC camp in Richland county was first made by George B. Ganyard, county agricultural agent, several weeks ago. He is a member of the chamber's new committee.

J. O. Hanley, chairman of the group, explained that the chamber is not asking the government to establish a new camp, but to move one of the camps already established in Ohio to this vicinity.

He said the site offered the government would provide ample acreage in accordance with federal specifications for the construction of the necessary buildings to house 200 CCC workers, and would still allow for a sizeable athletic field.

The site is located on an improved road and electric power is available.

PAY WITH PAPER

Nazis Consider Plan to Issue Notes to German Workers.

BERLIN—(U.P.)—Das Schwarze Korps, organ of the crack "SS" bodyguard of Nazi troops, said today that plans were being considered to pay part of the wages of German workers "in the form of promissory notes." The exact form of the notes, it was added, had "not yet been announced."

"Since we have not had unemployment for a long time and since we have already used up most of our possibilities for rationalization for the time being, our rising war production can only be continued if we apply less labor to the satisfaction of private needs."

"Personal over-consumption" was criticized, the publication commenting: "It must be considered as serious an offense on the home front as cowardice or lack of discipline on the military front. National socialism knows how to protect people from such things!"

4 HUNTERS OF TREASURE LOST

Ship Reported Missing: Hear Group Found Buried Wealth.

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—Unreported on the high seas after reportedly discovering a $60,000,000 treasure buried on Cocos island, two Los Angeles adventurers aboard the schooner Spindrift today were the objects of an officially requested search. Missing were Charles Forbes and James Forbes, jr., an. two crew members, Hugh Davenport and Jack Harris.

Amid rumors they actually had located the treasure, the four sailed recently from the island. Two days later their radio became silent. The survey offices asked any ship in the vicinity of the Cocos island to notify the United States Navy if the Spindrift was sighted.

SPECIAL VOTE BEFORE BRICKER

Governor Back, to Decide in Few Days If He Will Call Congressional Election.

Gov John W. Bricker, back in his office at Columbus today after a Florida vacation, will decide within the next few days whether to call a special election in either or both the 17th and 22nd congressional districts to fill vacancies in congress caused by deaths.

Death of Representative William A. Ashbrook, Democrat, on Jan. 1 removed the second Ohio legislator from the house at Washington. He represented the 17th district, which includes Richland county. Congressman Chester Bolton, Republican, of the 22nd district, part of Cuyahoga county, died several months ago.

At the time of Mr. Bolton's death, the governor decided against a special election immediately on the grounds of the excessive cost.

The governor's secretary, Don Power, told The News-Journal today that no request had come to the governor's office for a

JURY PICKED IN MURDER TRIAL

State Opens Case Against Officer Accused of Killing Girl, 14.

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa.—(INS)—With a jury finally chosen after two days' questioning of veniremen, the commonwealth opened its case today against Corporal Benjamin Franklin, state motor policeman charged with the slaying of 14-year-old Joan Stevens, Nesquehoning school girl.

The commonwealth seeks a second degree murder conviction.

Franklin, 35, has admitted firing the eight automatic slugs that killed Joan in a state prowl car in Nesquehoning last June 5 as the trooper and a companion, by their stories, were questioning her. He claims she first pulled a gun, later found to be a toy, and threatened to "blow my brains out."

Re-Electing These Bank Heads Is Annual Custom

Rigby Chosen President of Citizens National for 36th Consecutive Year, Ackerman for 30th Time.

As regularly as January rolls around, two Mansfield banks re-elect their presidents, and 1940 has proved no exception.

For the 36th consecutive year, J. A. Rigby was named head of the Citizens National Bank and Trust company at the annual meeting of directors yesterday afternoon.

A few hours earlier, directors of the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank elected Charles F. Ackerman president for the 30th year in a row.

Mr. Rigby, who first headed the Citizens bank in 1904, has been in ill health for the past two years and for a number of months has been confined to his Marion avenue road home.

An institution at the Mansfield Savings bank, Mr. Ackerman is in his 83rd year, and has been connected with the bank for 65 years. In excellent health, he is at the bank every day.

All of the officers and directors of the Citizens bank were returned to office at yesterday's meeting. S. E. Finley was named vice-president; Charles W. Fuchs, cashier; C. W. Marks and C. A. Wolfarth, assistant cashiers; John J. Charles, assistant cashier and trust officer.

SCHMIDT STAYS

St. John Says O. S. U. Coach to Get 1-Year Contract.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Francis A. Schmidt whose second three-year contract as Ohio State football coach expires this spring, will be offered a one-year contract for next season, Athletic Director L. W. St. John said today.

St. John said it was "certain" Schmidt would remain at Ohio State despite reports that he was under consideration for the Stanford coaching job.

The athletic director and Schmidt returned to the campus today after a sojourn on the Pacific coast where they attended athletic association meetings. Schmidt refused to discuss the Stanford report but said he "expected" to return to Ohio State next fall.

Explaining the one-year contract offer, St. John explained that "long contracts aren't worth the paper they are written on."

The schools were closed Dec. 22 to economize after a similar levy lost last Nov. 7. Had the levy been defeated again yesterday, classes would have remained closed until Jan. 22.

Robber Gets $20, Then Gives Man Coin For Telephone Call.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—A slight, middle-aged man used an empty gun to rob a gasoline station of $20, and then loaned the attendant a nickel to telephone police.

The man refused to give his name to Cleveland police today. He told them he didn't care if he was kept in jail for the rest of his life.

"I'm tired of bouncing around from town to town," he said. "Somewhere in the world I still have friends and I don't want them to know what I did."

He said he hadn't had a steady job in nine years.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—(AP)—H. A. "Buck" Rider, assistant state conservation commissioner who was critically injured in an auto skid-crash, was reported "still in danger" at a Springfield hospital today although physicians noted some improvement.

County Renews Plea for State Aid for Bridge on North Main

In a letter to Murray D. Shaffer, Ashland division state highway engineer, county commissioners today had renewed their appeal for state aid in building a bridge over Touby's run on North Main street.

Pointing out that it may be possible to build the bridge as a WPA project, the commissioners estimated the sponsors' share of the cost at $4,000 and the entire cost at about $16,000. They asked for no specific amount from the state.

In their letter they reminded the state department that it had agreed to share the cost of several smaller projects in the county this year if the county contributed to the financing of the proposed grade elimination work on route 30N west of the city.

On that basis, the commissioners said, they pledged $40,000 toward building the grade elimination at the B and O. and Erie tracks west of the city.

The North Main street bridge would replace an old one that collapsed several months ago and has been only temporarily repaired. Under the state road and bridge set-up, counties must finance the major part of the cost of building bridges on state highways within city limits.

PREPARES TO LAUNCH OHIO BUC INQUIRY

Cleveland Regional Office of Social Security Board to Probe CIO Charges.

ATKINSON DENIES THEM

Calls Claims of Union Head 'Grotesque' But McNutt Approves Investigation.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The regional office of the social security board in Cleveland probably will conduct the investigation of the Ohio bureau of unemployment compensation it was indicated today.

Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt approved such an inquiry on the basis of complaints submitted by leaders of the Congress of Industrial Organizations in Ohio. The social security board offices here said Robert C. Goodwin, the board's regional director at Cleveland probably would supervise the investigation.

The CIO delegation led by John Owens, state CIO president, accused BUC Administrator H. C. Atkinson of interpreting the job insurance benefit payment section of the law to the disadvantage of workmen and in favor of employers. Owens claimed unemployed workmen lost $,250,000 during 1939 in benefits under Atkinson's administration.

Atkinson replied to the charges with the assertion that "Paul McNutt is too shrewd a politician to get sucked in as a stooge by a few CIO leaders."

"Tis is typical CIO misrepresentation and distoriton," he said. "It is deliberately false and none of the charges will stand impartial scrutiny."

Principal Charges Listed.

The five main charges against Atkinson were that:

1. He denied unemployed workmen full benefits and deprived them of fair hearings on appeal.
2. He denied a "great majority"

STRIKES SNAG

Guam Fortifications Opposed by House Naval Chairman.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The navy's proposal to obtain $4,000,000 for developing sea plane facilities at Guam, 1,500 miles from Japan, struck a snag in the house naval affairs committee today.

Chairman Vinson (D.) of Georgia, of the committee told Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, today that he would raise a point of order in the house against the appropriation.

Action of the navy, in seeking funds through the appropriations committee after congress rejected fortification of Guam in a bitter fight last year, was described by Vinson as apparently irregular.

In addition, it was announced, Dozenberg will be one of the government's key witnesses when Browder is brought before a federal trial jury next week.

Germans Bomb Ships, British Raid Air Base

London Admits Attacks on 11 Vessels With Two Sunk But Berlin Says Nazi Warplanes Destroyed 8; Denmark Reports Battle at Isle of Sylt.

(By Associated Press)

German and British aircraft provided the high spot of European war activity today as the Finnish-Russian conflict took a breathing spell of inaction such as has kept the western front quiet for months.

The German high command announced that eight British vessels were sunk in the North sea yesterday during suddenly intensified air raids.

Acknowledging German air attacks on 11 vessels, the British admiralty said only two had been sunk. British reports described new night scouting flights over northern Germany and said Royal Air Force planes were continuing to patrol German bases in the Frisian islands to choke off Nazi mine-laying activities.

Reports reaching Denmark of cannonading and glimpses of searchlights indicated that a new air battle perhaps was fought over the Island of Sylt, northern German air base, early today. Numerous planes were sighted in the region.

Vivid flashes, the rumble of cannonading and the distant glare of searchlights, followed by the southwestward flight of numerous aircraft from the Island of Sylt indicated a hectic battle, Danish observers reported today.

They said the activity was noted off the southwest Danish coast just before dawn and that about 9 a. m. (3 a. m. EST) the planes, of undisclosed nationality, were seen heading in the direction of Helgoland Bight.

(The British reported today the Royal Air Force had made reconnaissance flights during the night over northwest Germany and Helgoland and maintained "security patrols" over German mine-laying bases in the Frisian Islands.)

Island Bombed.

An unidentified plane dropped three bombs on the southern part of the Danish Island of Roem last night, but no damage was done, reports reaching here today said. Roem is north of Sylt.

In London, the sudden swoop of long-range German bombers upon British shipping was believed to be possibly the prelude to an aerial "blitzkrieg," many naval and air experts suggested today, giving quick significance to Prime Minister Chamberlain's warning that grim days are ahead.

The admiralty announced today that the 1,985-ton British steamer Oakgrove had been attacked from the air and sunk with an undetermined number of casualties.

A communique said 20 of the Oakgrove's crew were believed to have landed safely.

The announcement added that the Danish ships Ivan Kondrup, 3,369 tons, and Freddy, 955 tons

PREPAREDNESS: Hungary Acts To Settle Quarrel With Rumania

(By Associated Press)

BUDAPEST—Apparently united with Italy in a determination to block any Russian expansion in southeastern Europe, Hungary sought today a settlement of her differences with Rumania for a common front in the Balkans.

Informed persons said King Carol would be pressed for a speedy reply to Hungarian overtures for a settlement of territorial questions. Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky reported yesterday to the crown council on his week-end talks with Italy's foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Hungarian and Italian sources made it clear that should Rumania act to remove the 21-year-old bitterness over her acquisition of Transylvania, she could be assured of full support from both nations against any possible Russian thrust into Bessarabia.

Bessarabia went from Russia to Rumania and Transylvania from Hungary to Rumania in World war territorial changes.

If Rumania ignores an invitation for a settlement with Hungary, these sources indicated, Italy and Hungary are prepared to leave her to her fate. Moreover, Hungarians asserted that should the Red army penetrate the Rumanian frontier, Hungary would enter Transylvania.

It was not disclosed whether Hungary would insist upon the immediate cession of a part of Transylvania, or be content with a promise of transfer of the territory after the European war.

Some informed persons said Ciano had brought pressure on Csaky to be content with a promise backed by an Italian guarantee of its fulfillment.

The newspaper Uj Magyarsag (New Hungary) said Italy was prepared to protect southeastern Europe against a Soviet attack, and that Rumania, as well as Hungary, could count on her support.

Rumania has refused to yield an inch of territory heretofore.

STALEMATE: Finnish Troops Get 'Breather' as Reds Lay Low

BULLETIN

HELSINKI—(INS)—Russia's reported dismay over the failure of the six weeks' Finnish campaign today led to a new clean-up on the front in an attempt to inject new spirit into the Russians. General L. Z. Mekhlis, highest political army commissar, was said to be en route to the front to "supervise the soldiers' morale."

(By Associated Press)

COPENHAGEN—Six weeks of fierce defense and slashing counterattacks against the Soviet Russian invasion appear to have won a breathing spell for Finland.

Finns suggest their foe is temporarily exhausted. An official Russian acknowledgement of a withdrawal on the central eastern front tends to bear this out.

How long the lull will last Finnish military quarters can not say, but they presume it is merely the quiet before the storm of a great Red offensive most likely to break on the Karelian isthmus.

Red forces have been concentrating fresh manpower on the isthmus front the past two weeks.

Some reports reaching Copenhagen said the Russians have about 200,000 soldiers in Karelia.

The breathing spell would permit a further solidification of Finnish defenses and a filling in of the Russian front line, particularly on the middle eastern front where within 10 days the Finnish high command reported smashing two Russian divisions.

Noteworthy were the Finnish and Russian communiques, the former covering Monday's situa-

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Queen Olga's body stiffened in her chair as if she had received an electric shock.

"Play a harp on the professional stage?" she ejaculated. "Olina?"

Then her face suffused with color, and she looked apologetically at me.

"How very presumptuous of her to make a request like that!" she said. "She has no professional training! She would ruin the performance! But we need not be concerned. I have heard so often of Philip's jealous standards for his productions that I am sure even his desire to please Olina would not permit him to give her a chance to hurt your play."

"I do not think 'presumptuous' is the word" I told her smiling. "Your daughter simply has 'gone American.' Over here, talented youth has learned that audacity must lead ability. And while I agree with you that ordinarily an amateur actress would have no chance to get even a tiny place in the Veritzen organization, it so happens that Olina, with almost uncanny instinct, has seen a place in the play where a beautiful girl playing a harp would really add to the effectiveness of the scene. It will be no trouble for me to write in a few words for her which she can learn in ten minutes, and I can rehearse her with Mary so that when the real rehearsal comes tomorrow, she will be prepared for it. I am sure Mr. Veritzen will consent to her appearance if I tell him these things. But there is one thing I must know before I speak to him—of course, beside your approval."

"What is that one thing?" she asked, without committing herself as to her approval.

"About Olina's beauty there is no question," I said truthfully. "Her speaking voice is charming. I shall have no trouble there. But—how well can she play the harp?"

"She has had the best instructors in Europe for years." Olina's mother replied, and when she went on a little note of maternal pride had crept into her voice. "I really do not think it was flattery to royalty when they told us she could have a brilliant professional career if she wished."

"I think Mr. Veritzen would take your word on that," I said dryly. "But what about your approval of her appearing in the play?"

She waited for almost a full second before she replied, and I guessed that she was piling the earth high over the grave in which her old royal prejudices were interred.

"But, of course, I approve," she said at last "Do you think it might lead to other professional appearances for her?"

"If she makes a success of an appearance in a Veritzen production, there is no question of that," I assured her.

"Then, I am very glad," she said. "She loves her playing as she does nothing else A career would provide an outlet for her restlessness, and keep her out of mischief" She smiled faintly. "But she has no harp. It has been a great grief with her that we had to leave hers behind."

I gave her an encouraging smile.

"If Philip Veritzen gives her permission to appear in the play," I said, "a number of harps will appear almost immediately at the farm house, so that Olina may choose the instrument which most suits her."

"He does things on a grand scale, Philip," she said softly.

"It is fortunate," I said, smiling at her meaningly, "that you are used to that scale. Am I wrong in assuming that you mean to give him the answer he craves this morning?"

Pick-Up Meals For Last Minute

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Quick tricks and pepper-uppers should be in the repertoire of every good cook. We have many of our own, which we are glad to share with our friends, as quick tricks for unexpected luncheon guests are valuable

Make one with six firm bananas, two tablespoons melted butter, salt, six strips bacon, six slices toast and savory cheese sauce, for six servings Peel bananas. Place on broiler rack or in pan. Brush well with butter and sprinkle with salt. Place about five inches below heat and broil six to ten minutes or until bananas are brown and tender, easily pierced with a fork Broil bacon until crisp. Cut each banana crosswise into halves and arrange two halves on each slice of toast. Pour sauce over bananas and garnish with bacon Serve at once.

Savory Cheese Sauce is made with two tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour, teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, teaspoon prepared mustard, one-fourth teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, two cups milk, one cup grated American cheese. Melt butter, add flour and seasoning and stir until smooth. Stir in milk slowly. Add cheese, and cook, stirring constantly until sauce is smooth and thickened About two cups sauce

Always Welcome.

A pepper-upper for cold meats is always welcome, and here's a swell relish of pickles, beets and cabbage. Mix it well and pile it on lettuce cups, and then place around cold meat platter. It's nice with hot meats, too, as crisp as a Yankee twang. Make two cups finely shredded cabbage, three-fourths cup chopped pickles, one cup diced Julienne beets, two sliced hard-boiled eggs. Combine cabbage, celery, French dressing one cup pickles and celery Add French dressing, tossing lightly with a fork well blended Add beets just before serving and toss lightly. Garnish with eggs and serve with addtional dressing

It is good to have something on the pantry shelf that adds zest and tang to salad dressings. Spiced Vinegar is just the thing It is made with one-fourth ounce each whole cloves, mace, allspice, pepper, celery seed and mustard seed, one quart good cider vinegar, tablespoon sugar, one bay leaf and one teaspoon salt Place all ingredients in covered mason jar for two weeks. Strain before using.

THEATERS

THERE'S a cryptic sign on the set where "I Was An Adventuress" is being made. It says "No War Talk Allowed" The reason is obvious when the roll call of the cast is made. Vera Zorina, the star, is a Norwegian, Richard Greene is an Englishman, Eric von Stroheim an Austrian, Peter Lorre a Hungarian, Fritz Feld and Sig Rumann are Germans (probably Jewish), Albert Conti an Italian, and the director, Ratoff, is a Russian. In fact everyone on the Hollywood lots has to be very careful about war talk because every European nation is represented out there And any "busting off" might result in a minor war in the film city.

"Nurse Edith Cavell."

Whether or not it is propaganda, as many have charged, "Nurse Edith Cavell" is a stirring picture based on a real chapter of World war history. It depicts the story of the English nurse who used her position to aid Allied soldiers to escape out of German-held territory. Anna Neagle, the English actress, plays Edith Cavell. Edna May Oliver plays the independent Countess de Marvon, one of the women who assisted Cavell. Not to be confused with Miss Neagle is Ann Nagel, American actress, who is in the second picture at the Madison, "Legion of Lost Flyers."

Adventures In Hollywood.

The adventures of the Jones Family in Hollywood, in the picture of that name, bring each member in contact with some one of the glamor figures of the film city. Lucy meets her screen idol and Jack meets the glamor girl who takes him for a ride—but not in an auto. The Jones Family film is being shown at the Ritz, where "The Women" tops the bill This is M-G-M's big all-women picture headed by Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, and Rosalind Russell.

Another Chips.

Taking its cue from "Good Bye Mr Chips," the film "The Housemaster" revolves around a lovable old bachelor who is house master at an English school for boys and who represents all that is dignified in school traditions His clash with a new man and the boys rallying to his aid are the high points of the story. Otto Kruger plays the title role. This is being shown at the Park, where "The Young in Heart" is also a feature.

About Annabella.

Annabella the attractive French girl who is sharing starring honors with Robert Young in "Bridal Suite," was born Ann Carpentier in Paris on July 14, which is the French Fourth of July Her favorite movie stars were Norma Talmadge and Mae Murray, whose pictures she wore in a locket. She determined to follow them in the cinema world. She has talent and charm but her screen career hasn't progressed very rapidly. Her current picture is at the Majestic, where "Each Dawn I Die" is also being shown.

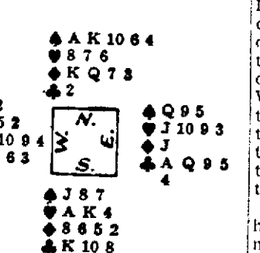
"The Authority on Authorities"

HAVE YOU LEARNED IT?

IT IS pretty hard to defend yourself against a play you do not understand. Only a player who has studied the composition of such maneuvers as the double squeeze would be likely to recognize that one is being built up by the declarer. If he sensed in time what was going on, he might be able to defend his side against it. But if he did not, you could not reasonably expect him to make the only move that could head it off.



(Dealer South. Neither side vulnerable)

South's 1-Diamond, North's 1-Spade, South's 1-No Trump, North's 3-Spades and South's 4 Spades here brought a lead of the diamond J from East West played his ace, returned the diamond 4 for East to ruff the Q, the latter cashed his club A and returned the club 5 to the K

Here the declarer, William B Hill, of the Yale Club team in New York's Intercollegiate league, went to work for a double squeeze He took three trumps the heart A, club K, diamond K then two more spades When the last was led to the 11th trick, East had to discard one of his two hearts in order to keep his club Q guarding the dummy's 10 That 10 was then discarded by Mr. Hill, and now West was squeezed. If he threw the diamond 10, he would set up the declarer's 7, so he broke his two hearts, and Mr. Hill cashed the heart K and 4 for the last two tricks

When West had four cards left, his heart Q plus a guard, his diamond 10 and his club J, he could have prevented the play from working If he threw a heart depending on East to guard that suit, he himself could have protected the clubs and diamonds East then could have afforded to discard the club Q on the 11th trick and keep his two hearts.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, January 11.

Moderate opportunity and accomplishment are presaged by the fairly favorable lunar transits. With the emotions under mild stimulus, both in business and all pertaining to writings, publishing and promotion, cleverness and resourcefulness may prove profitable. However, there is some menace of treachery, intrigue or secret undermining from a source little suspected. Keep alert,—astute.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a year of moderate success. Business should move at a fairly active pace, and matters of a literary, advertising, publicity or transportation nature should thrive, providing there is sufficient stability and application. There are dangers of secret underminings, intrigues or treacheries, which are best met by strategy or diplomacy.

A child born on this day may be versatile and resourceful, having fine mental equipment and moderate ambition. It may enjoy fair success in life, despite enmities or its own subtleties.

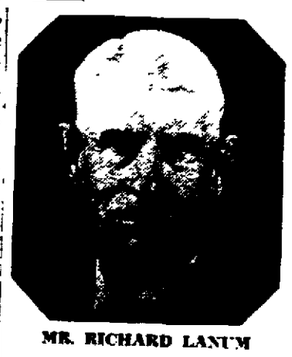
This Springfield Man Says "Vendol" Relieved Suffering

Recommends this great Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine after it proves to be best medicine he ever tried. Troubles were due to constipation.



MR. RICHARD LANUM

"I can certainly say that Vendol is everything I heard it was, because it has given me mervelous relief from my troubles and I feel better than in many a day since taking it," says Mr. Richard Lanum of 403 Section St., Springfield, Ohio.

"When I started on Vendol I was in a sluggish, let-down condition and constipated every day, and this kept my nerves on edge so that my sleep was not restful and I'd get up most every morning feeling achy, with a headache, bad taste in my mouth, tongue coated and little spots dancing before my eyes.

"In addition, this constipation made me feel bloated with gas after eating and sometimes it was so bad my breath became short and I had palpitation; at other times it made my stomach churn with fermenting food so that acid risings came up in my throat and I'd have sharp gas cramps in my stomach.

"I heard so much praise for Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets that I got some, and I'm thoroughly pleased with the way they acted. In a few days my constipation was relieved; then all those other troubles passed off and now I'm feeling as well as I ever felt before. I think Vendol is fine medicine and recommend it to anyone who suffers from the same causes as mine."

Vendol is made from extracts of Roots and Herbs with Alkalines added and gives relief from many symptoms resulting from constipation or need of a diuretic to my kidneys. It is pleasant to take and prompt to act.

"Come to Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and Fourth Sts.; ask for the Vendol Man and receive a free sample of Vendol. Most all druggists sell and highly recommend Vendol."

Radios Installed For the Use of Air Passengers

CHICAGO — (NS) — High above the clouds, speeding along at 200 miles per hour, airline passengers today have all the comforts of home, and an additional one as well if they shouldn't happen to have a radio receiving set at home.

Individual receivers, enabling passengers to listen to their favorite radio programs, have been installed on Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., transport planes.

Each set is operated by a master receiving unit controlled by the hostess on duty, and individual miniature loud speakers are provided passengers who request them.

In addition, the pilots will be able to cut in on the radio receivers and announce to passengers such information as arrival time at destination, location, flying speed, and unusual scenic views.

And finally, for the benefit of passengers who do not care for radio, the passenger radio sets are individual; and the program will not be heard by anyone other than those asking to have the contrivance plugged into outlets at their seats.

FRANCE FACES PAPER SHORTAGE

PARIS—(NS)—The lifting of the ban on the importation of foreign newsprint has been suggested by French newspapers today.

Several papers in strong editorials call the attention of parliament and the government administration to the extreme shortage of newsprint in France. They state that if the situation is not soon improved, newspapers will disappear altogether.

Papers here now are limited to four pages, and for editions of special occasions, a maximum of six pages. Many newspapers, however, have already started printing on one sheet, using back and front of a full size page and then folding into tabloid form.

ALUMNI RECORD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass — (NS) — Harvard Graduate School of Engineering alumni hold important executive posts in the public health services of twenty-six states and twenty-eight foreign countries. Employment records of 435 men studied disclosed that 416 were "known" to be employed, 231 are in government service, 99 of these in foreign countries.

SAFETY POSTER CONTESTANTS TO GET EXTRA MONTH TO WORK

Pupils in Mansfield and Richland county schools who plan to enter the safety poster contest sponsored by the United Commercial Travelers will have an extra month—or until Feb. 24 to complete their posters, Atty. R. J. Brown, contest chairman, said today.

The deadline previously had been set for Jan. 27, but Brown said that would give pupils too little time to prepare entries.

The posters, for which $20 in prizes will be awarded, will be displayed in Mansfield during the week of Feb. 26. Entries must be submitted to the chairman at poster headquarters in the Southern hotel by noon Feb. 24.

Cardboard and paint for making posters had been distributed today to all schools in Mansfield and the county. Pupils may obtain them free of charge.

The posters must have "Safety" as their theme. They may deal with safety in the home, school, on the highway, or in the street.

An honorary sponsors' committee of 17 members had been appointed today for the contest. Headed by Mayor William J. Locke as chairman, it is composed of these members:

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston; Probate Judge C. J. Anderson; Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch; C. M. Crafton, Mansfield safety-director; R. M. Calene, president of the Mansfield Retail Credit association; W. B. Ford, president of the Mansfield Rotary club; J. R. Tomlin, president of the Amima club; Homer L. Bigbee, president of the Farmers bank at Bellville; Atty. John C. O'Donnell, county Democratic executive chairman; Ralph Hardy, county Republican executive chairman; D. O Meese Mansfield insurance man; Charles Reed, commander of the American Legion at Shelby; Mrs. H C. Brokaw, Shelby; P. W Thomas, Plymouth newspaper publisher; Meade K. Bates, Mansfield police chief, and E. P. Long, Richland county sheriff.

Woman Pays 22 Cent Tax Bill With $22 Money Order.

CHARLOTTE, N. C — (AP) — A colored woman living in Philadelphia sent the county tax office a $22 money order after the office sent her a 22 cent bill for taxes on a vacant lot.

Authorities wrote her, and she replied with a quarter and the explanation that she just naturally thought taxes had gone up.

She got her money order and three cents change by return mail.

OHIO'S HIDDEN GRID guarantees never failing Gas Service

Lift a few feet from the crust of earth covering Ohio and you find a network of high-pressure transmission lines transporting natural gas from fields of supply to markets served by The Gas Company. From this 7,000 mile transmission system all but a few small markets are served by two or more lines. Gas that travels a certain direction one day may be reversed the next as demands change or emergencies arise. Stabilization of gas has made it interchangeable so that no city must depend on a single source of supply. These improvements in service, costing millions, have made gas worth more to you, the customer. Yet, at the national average rate of 75 cents per 1000 cubic feet, it costs less to do the common household jobs better with natural gas. By any comparison, YOUR GAS CENT IS WELL SPENT.

Tax League to Check on Economy Claims of Bricker

PLANS AUDIT OF SPENDING DURING 1939

Report to 'Back Up or Show Up' Governor's Record of First Year in Office.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — The non-partisan Citizen's Tax league will, by means of an audit survey of the state's 1939 expenditures, "back up or show up" Governor Bricker's economy claims, Samuel P. Bush, league president, declared today.

The 76-year-old retired steel executive revealed that the league had, in its annual session in Columbus, approved a 1940 program included an audit of state payrolls, maintenance costs and operating expenses to determine whether the economy claims of the chief executive were justified.

"The league will audit all state expenditures in 1939 and compare the total to the cost of state government in 1938, which previously was established by the same methods," Bush, who likes to be called a "Jeffersonian Democrat," declared.

"We intend to put a spending yardstick up to Governor Briker's administration. The facts and figures our auditors find will determine whether the league will back up or show up the governor's claims."

Check Toledo Schools.

Other portions of the 1940 program called for an investigation of the Toledo school situation and a continuation of the survey of the Ohio Industrial commission. However, the league postponed action on a suggestion by Cleveland newspapers that relief conditions there be studied. Action on that matter will be taken up at a later meeting, Bush stated.

Bush, who receives no pay as full-time president of the league, claimed that the organization has saved Ohio taxpayers $2,500,000 in just three operations.

"We stopped the payment of $650,000 in 'hot-mix' contracts by securing injunctions," he said. "Another $350,000 was saved by stopping 'truckless trucking' on liquor contracts.

"But the biggest item—the suit that set aside the highway department payroll bill and saved the taxpayers $1,500,000 — cost the league only $29.35 in court costs. The prosecution was handled by the attorney general's office."

The highway payroll bill would have provided payment of highway crews at all times, whether they worked or not.

Customers Eat Cake as Oil Firm Marks Birthday

Celebrating its 70th anniversary, the Standard Oil company of Ohio was to distribute 250,000 individual birthday cakes today to its customers while six birthday parties are being given throughout the state this week for its employes.

More than 16,000 of the cakes are to be given out in the Mansfield district, according to John B. Coleman, district manager.

Representing the largest single baking order of its kind ever placed, the 250,000 cakes, weighing a total of 62½ tons, required 31,000 pounds of flour, 25,000 pounds of sugar, 186,000 eggs, 25,000 pints of milk, 15,000 pounds of butter and shortening, 1,500 pounds of baking powder and 4,500 pounds of salt, according to figures compiled by company officials.

The cakes are about four inches in diameter and have two layers. Standard Oil statisticians have figured that they took 57,000 square feet of white frosting; that the edges are decorated with 40 miles of red frosting while 19 miles of blue frosting was required to letter the word 'Sohio' in the center of the cakes.

The parties are being given in metropolitan cities. Leading the entertainers is Miss Adelaide Moffett, New York City debutante who has gone in for professional entertaining, who is the granddaughter of James A. Moffett, one of the early associates of John D. Rockefeller, founder of the Standard Oil company.

Up and Down THE STREET

Richland county sportsmen were considerably shocked to read yesterday of the serious injury sustained by H. A. "Buck" Rider, state conservation department official, in an automobile accident near Springfield. Rider, who was also active in Boy Scout work, spoke here on Dec. 6, addressing area Boy Scout leaders at their annual venison dinner at the Elks' home.

There is little of the shrinking violet about V. E. "Sam" Vining, and his cold-weather chapeau is another evidence of the fact. When the thermometer gets down around zero, Sam wears his white and scarlet fur cap. The cap is white fur and the flap that turns down over the ears and the bill are the color of a Paul Scarlet rose—if not redder. Sam probably goes on the assumption that anything as loud as his cap is bound to be "hot."

And then there was the sad case of the young man-about-town, who somehow or other got delayed in one of the local drink emporiums last evening to such an hour that he had to miss his favorite radio program, because time had slipped by so fast in the company of genial companions No, the program wasn't "Pot of Gold." It was "I Love a Mystery." It developed that his wife loves mysteries, too, but not the kind that concern the whereabouts of friend husband when he ought to be home.

W. H. Shryock, "grand old man of Richland county fairs" wasn't among Ohio fair officials who convened in Columbus today for their annual state meeting. Shryock has attended every state meeting in the past 20 years with the exception of two. Once before he was ill and this time he says "you can't tell what this darn weather is going to do and I'm not going to risk getting a cold." Shryock will be 82 on Feb. 12.

PUSHES PROBE

Ashland Mayor Digs Into Cost of Laundry Work.

ASHLAND — An investigation started last week by Mayor Howard S. Lutz into laundry bills for the Ashland Fire department, was continued today as the mayor dispatched a letter to Fire Chief Charles Clark, asking for further information.

In his letter the mayor said, "There seems to be no valid reason for such a difference, either in price or pounds in view of the fact that occupancy seems to have been substantially the same during both periods."

Lutz asked for an explanation after pointing out laundry expenses had risen two and a half times since the work was done by a wife of a fireman. The work was formerly done by a commercial laundry. Explaining the higher cost, the fire chief told the mayor "there were fewer beds being used part time when the laundry was doing the work."

TAFT PLAN TO BALANCE BUDGET WOULD FAIL, ROOSEVELT SAYS

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON— President Roosevelt refused today to award a "handsome prize," or any other kind of a prize to Sen. Robert A. Taft, (R.-O.), for a five-point formula which Taft offered to balance the budget.

Mr. Roosevelt implied that Taft's formula would fail by several billions to bring federal revenues and expenditures into balance.

Reading from a typewritten memorandum at his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt said that a study of Taft's formula convinced him it would save only about $8,000,000. That saving, Mr. Roosevelt indicated, would be made only at the sacrifice of essential and valuable governmental operations.

He cited as one agency which Taft would eliminate, the disaster loan corporation, which he pointed out had been expending most of its funds for Ohio River flood relief. Another agency was the electric home and farm authority, which he said has been operating at a profit since its foundation.

Other agencies which would be put to the ax would be the central statistical board, national resources planning board, the maritime labor board and the national advisory committee on aeronautics on which the public safety in the air has been generally dependent for many years.

The president said that the government reorganization orders which he has placed in effect have produced a net economy of $11,000,000. He said further reorganization orders this year should bring the net economy to about $25,000,000 annually.

OKLAHOMA CITY —(AP)— Robert Peel, 17, playing hookey, stopped to admire Carmichael, the Zoo's polar bear. Noticing the snow in the bear's cage was trampled, he started throwing some more in.

Carmichael took a swipe at him, tore his right arm from elbow to wrist.

"Did I reap the wages of sin?" said Robert. "That bear sure made a pork chop out of my arm."

CALL SENT OUT FOR COMMITTEE TO SET UP PLAN

Hamilton Summons Heads of Party as Speculation Continues on 3rd Term Issue.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Debt-free and hopeful that the 1938 congressional election trend will lead to bigger things this year, the Republican National committee was summoned today to meet here Feb. 16 to fix the place and date of its presidential nominating contion.

Chairman John D. M. Hamilton called the meeting. The Democratic National committee will meet here for the same purpose on Feb. 5. If it is possible to do so, the Republicans hope this year to hold their nominating convention after the majority has decided the political question of a generation:

"Will President Roosevelt be a third term candidate?"

Republican National committee rules require four months notice of the convention date so the earliest possible G. O. P. meeting would be June 17.

Mr. Roosevelt brought the jockeying for convention dates into the open last November with a suggestion that it would be more economical and to the best interests of the country for presidential campaigns to be shortened. He suggested delaying convention dates considerably beyond the June weeks which usually are devoted to them.

Republicans indignantly repudiated the idea that a Democratic president was entitled to say when the G. O. P. should nominate. But their indignation was mixed liberally with chagrin that the Democrats were thinking of a later date, too. It long has been the custom for Republicans to meet first, their almost uninterrupted majority position in the country making it of relatively little signaficance when the Democrats gathered and, often, whom they chose to head their ticket.

FAIR ENOUGH!

George Spelvin Thinks He Can Maybe Make Diplomat Of His Oldest Boy, Dummy

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—George Spelvin's son, the one they call Dummy Spelvin, has been giving the old man a lot of worry lately, because George isn't going to last forever and he wants the kid to get started at something. So Mr. Spelvin was cheered the other day when Dummy said he thought he would like to be a diplomat.

"I don't see why I couldn't be a diplomat," Dummy said.

"I don't, either," said the old man. "Except you have to spend a few years preparing for a career."

"How do I do that?" Dummy asked.

"Well," George said, "you have to get married to some rich queen first and give a lot of her money to the national committee."

"Have you got any rich queens in mind?" Dummy asked.

"No," the old man said, "but you ought to be able to snag one around some saloon in New York or maybe Palm Beach. That is where they hang around.

"The way to do it is you become a playboy. You hang around saloons and never pay any bills, but just crack funny jokes when the waiter comes and say, 'Give it to her.' You pretend like you think it's a great joke to make the women pay for your drinks and the hack fares and all."

"But," Dummy said, "then if'n they don't take it as a joke."

"If'n they don't, then you can make up your mind you are not the right type for a diplomat," his old man said. "That is the first step to qualify for a career. It is like the entrance examination. If you can't bum a few drinks off a glammer girl you are not ever going to get one to give you $25,000 to give to the national committee to buy you a job as a diplomat. But if you get by it's a great life, with easy hours, and the beauty of it is that everybody knows you are just a big dummy that got married to a rich queen. Nobody ever expects you to do anything bright."

"Yes, but, Paw," Dummy said, "suppose I and her don't get along. Suppose we fight the way you and Maw do, all the time. And suppose we get divorced."

"Oh," the old man said, "that is all right; in fact, that is practically compulsory. You won't hardly get any recognition without a divorce first. But after you have married one rich queen and divorced her, you will be surprised how the rest of them will fall in line to marry a dashing society scion. You can take your pick then, because you will have your name in all the saloon columns of the papers as a scion. That is what they call the bums who hang around the society saloons. I think it is a French word meaning saloon bum, but a society saloon bum."

"Yes," said Dummy, "and then who do I make application to for the job? To the state department?"

"No," the old man said. "The state department doesn't have anything to do with appointing diplomats. The state department just furnishes the clerks and secretaries who do the work. You have to make your application to the state chairman, and he will fix it up for you to make some speeches on the air about conditions. Not any particular conditions, but general conditions. They will fix it up so that people begin to hear through the papers that you are not only a scion, after all, but a serious young-dummy, determined to devote your wife's fortune to solving the problems of the national committee.

"So, by that time there comes a vacancy in some second-string country and you are a diplomat, with your charming wife.

"But, Paw," Dummy said, "do I have to spend all my time living in Europe and all those places? Does a diplomat have to do that?"

"No," said Mr. Spelvin, "that ain't necessary. You just go to the foreign country for about six weeks and meet the king and the local scions. Then you come back home for a vacation and stay home and hang around saloons in New York and Palm Beach. The more I look at you, Dummy, the more I am sure you were born for it."

HOLLYWOOD—"So you're a writer now!"

That's the usual salutation from old friends and acquaintances when they learn that for the past three years I have been employed at 20th Century-Fox as a screen writer.

Following this greeting there is generally a run of questions: "How does it seem?" "Do you like it better than fighting?" "Is it easier?"

Since retiring from the prize ring and venturing into the field of film writing, I can honestly say that of the two professions I like writing the better. But I don't find it easier. Nor do I find it vastly different; that is, in a certain sense. Though the physical fatigue at the end of a successful fight may be more quickly overcome, it is not nearly as satisfying as a tiring battle won with words.

Working as a novitiate writer at this studio has not only been a great pleasure, but it is comparable to an up-and-coming preliminary fighter getting a chance to fight all his fights in Madison Square Garden, the pugilistic theater of the world. There, as at this studio, the beginner is given the opportunity to exhibit his talents before the eyes of connoisseurs, critics, and those of importance in their field.

Strangely enough, it seems I had always had the urge to write but never did anything about it. Now it strikes me as rather odd how the reactions of a new writer, assigned to a story, are similar to those which a fighter experiences when he first enters the ring. In both he undergoes that same period of nervous uncertainty, that same gnawing emptiness manifests itself in the pit of his stomach as he mentally plans and maps out his course—until finally the actual slugging and punching out of words begins.

In the first stages of his struggle the fighter (or writer) is on his toes, cautiously feeling his way, remembering instructions, careful not to let himself be pulled into a snag or trap—for if he does it will necessitate finding a new method of attack.

Or if things move more smoothly and easily than anticipated, he may suddenly find himself becoming careless, thus leaving himself open. In either event, his vulnerable spot is unprotected with the result that his work is a disappointment to all who view it. Successive mistakes such as this make it hard to secure another assignment. Producers, like prize-fight promoters, examine a writer's last efforts—and he is usually as good as his last performance.

All in all, as far as my progress as a writer is concerned, I'm far from being a champion. I'm still in the preliminary fighter's stage, going along, feeling that I'm improving with each new assignment and, as I did with each new fight, waiting for the day when I turn in a knockout performance that will skyrocket me to the top bracket of main-eventers.

Butler Cagers Start Off New Year With Victory

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL,
News-Journal Sports Editor.

WILL HARRIDGE, who presides over the American league, has been accused of being a weakling, but he appeared to be on the right track when he declared that the circuit should be more concerned with building up the Browns than with tearing down the Yankees.

No matter how the bespectacled prexy of the league felt about the Yankee situation, we doubt whether he could have protected the New York club as the rivals were determined to do something about the "Yankee menace." The "no-trade" rule recently adopted is silly, even Mr. Harridge must agree. The Yanks proved it when they stepped outside of their own territory and picked up Lefty Grissom from the Reds to add a much-needed southpaw.

But back to St. Louis. The situation there is deplorable. Double-headers drew less than 500. Harridge says President Don Barnes and his associates have enough money to carry on, but can't buy the players they need to strengthen the club.

Here is where Harridge seems to step out of bounds. Tom Yawkey succeeded in buying for the Boston Red Sox and Larry MacPhail did likewise for both Cincinnati and Brooklyn.

The Browns must be built up. But money, not charity, can do it. It may not be possible to buy a pennant winner, but it certainly is possible to improve a club.

One of the clubs which could help the Browns is New York, but there's that "no-trade" rule. The league would probably waive the rule temporarily if it would benefit the St. Louis, but why should the Yankees supply surplus talent for the Browns after the deal they received from their rivals?

Feller Pitches Wins In Daylight, Too.

ONE of the earliest complaints against night baseball was the danger of hitting against a pitcher who was both fast and wild, such as Cleveland's Bobby Feller, for example. The players were convinced that it would be impossible to follow the delivery of a pitcher of Feller's type.

But strange as it may seem his night record was no more impressive than his daylight achievements. That's no slap at Bobby's night record, for his mark for that year was 24 and 9. His record under lights was 3 and 2, which gives him a daylight mark of 21 and 7.

Francis Schmidt to Remain at Ohio State, Denies He Wants Stanford Post.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Assurance that he again would coach Ohio State university's football eleven next fall came today from Francis A. Schmidt himself.

Back from a holiday trip to the west coast, Schmidt put the quietus on rumors that he would sign a contract with Stanford university to replace "Tiny" Thornhill, recently dismissed.

Shaughnessy May Get Stanford Job.

STANFORD, Cal.—(INS)—While the Stanford university board of athletic control maintained a noncommittal attitude on the choice of a new football coach, alumni circles today heightened their belief that Clark Shaughnessy, last grid mentor at the University of Chicago, would be named Friday night to succeed Tiny Thornhill.

Odds on Shaughnessy to succeed Stanford's ousted coach rose when University President Ray Lyman Wilbur disclosed that he and other college officials conferred recently at length with the Chicagoan who now only teaches at the midwestern institution. Chicago abandoned intercollegiate football after the last season.

At the same time, Buck Shaw of Santa Clara and Dud De Groot of San Jose State were still ranked as favorites among the students.

FLORA BEATS DAY

SUPPOSE YOU LIVED IN FRANCE—

It's Hard for French to Keep the Home Fires Burning, But Paris Lifts War Wraps, Enjoys Life

Child-less Towns Have Disadvantage; Food's Plentiful.

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN,
(AP Staff Correspondent)

PARIS — Madame Jean Q. Frenchman is holding her little family together these days by long distance methods. She not only has to write to Jean, but to their children as well.

This is one of the chief effects this war has had on Madame. In other wars, she and les enfants were together after Papa had gone to the front. But now, because of the danger of air raids, the children have been evacuated to country refuges.

Madame has many things besides letter writing, however, to occupy her. She knits for the soldiers. Frenchwomen always have been ardent knitters. But Madame has changed her pre-war favorite colors of blue and pink for khaki and beige.

There are men's jobs to be filled. Madame may now be punching tickets in the subway —or even reading gas meters. And if she has time left over there are the volunteer service corps.

Madame doesn't have to worry too much about money, if she hasn't a job or a nest egg. The government allows her 12 francs daily for herself (10 francs in the provinces) and 4 francs 50 centimes daily for each child. (The franc is worth about 2¼ cents.)

She does worry though—a lot —about Jean. This worry has been mitigated somewhat by the demobilization of men 49 years old and fathers of two or more children.

Madame's concern has been reduced, too, by knowledge that there have been no big battles.

Madame is perplexed by this contrast to the terrific days of 1914, but she continues to read her newspaper avidly, watching with scorn Hitler's efforts to split France and Britain.

Gas Masks Neglected.

The possibility of an air attack on Paris doesn't disturb Madame so much now, since none has occurred after many weeks of war. She is encouraged in this attitude by the return of thousands of Parisians who evacuated the capital before hostilities commenced. And Madame no longer carries her gas mask everywhere she goes.

She still dresses smartly—and on a small amount. She can buy whatever she pleases in the shops, although some shops have closed through lack of business or of personnel. The principal difference she notices in shops is that windows are criss-crossed with gummed paper as protection against splintering and there are big signs pointing the way to the abri (air raid shelter) "for our clientele."

Madame carries a flashlight at night because of the blackout. She walks more because subway and bus service is restricted, though not so badly as at the start of the war. Train service is better, too.

No Ration Cards.

The only food restrictions Madame has to face are the closing of all butcher shops on Mondays and the ban on the sale of beef on Tuesdays. There are no ration cards and no prospect of them since France is one of Europe's most self-sufficient nations.

Keeping the home fires burning has become a problem. Many apartment landlords, bereft of most of their tenants, cannot afford central heating for those who remain. So Madame has resorted to electric heaters, coal fires, or to digging the old base burner out of the cellar. The landlord helps on the fuel bill by reducing the rent.

Madame still goes to the movies —unless she has seen all the shows in town. Cinemas were forced to continue showing the same pictures or to revive old ones for many weeks when war halted domestic output and curtailed importations.

That is nothing, however, compared to the closing time of cabarets. With Jean, home on furlough, more cabarets are opening. These open at 6 p. m., but they turn you out in the very bud of the evening, by pre-war standards —11 sharp.

During an air-raid alarm, these Parisians wait in an emergency ambulance station.

DECAY GREATER

ST. LOUIS—(INS)—The United States has been made a nation of dyspeptics through improper care of the teeth, Dr. T. E. Purcell, dean of the School of Dentistry, St. Louis university, asserted in a recent talk here. "A dental survey," Dr. Purcell said, "revealed the fact that 95 per cent of grade school children in the United States have decayed teeth. Can we hope for a healthy race if this condition is allowed to continue?"

MARKET RULED BY FRACTIONAL PRICE CHANGES

Chrysler, Douglas, Goodyear Stocks Show Advances; Foreign Marts Lower.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK - Favor was show some issues in today's stock market but plus and minus signs were about equally distributed throughout the list.

The opening was moderate and the pace slow. Most changes were measured in fractions.

Resistant were Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Woolworth, Consolidated Edison, Pennsylvania Railroad and Goodyear.

Most of the time on the other side of the fence were U. S. Steel, Montgomery Ward, Anaconda and Westinghouse Electric.

Brokers explained traders, after yesterday's mild sell off, had not made up their minds whether the market was due for a continuation of the modest lift which began in late December and carried through the early days of January, or was likely to continue at near present levels.

Foreign marts, tended lower. Bonds were steady and commodities were mixed.

About in line with Wall Street expectations was the more than seasonal rise in electric power production for the holiday week ended Jan. 6. Heaviest gains over 1939 were in the central industrial, Rocky mountain and southern areas.

As power output increased, the sharply cold weather brought about an unusually large drain on fuel oil stocks which dropped 3,435,000 barrels. At the same time, due to the abnormally short foreign demand, gasoline inventories rose.

SPECIAL VOTE BEFORE BRICKER

Governor Back, to Decide in Few Days If He Will Call Congressional Election.

special election in the 17th district.

Ralph M. Hardy, Richland county executive committee chairman, said he knew of no demand for a special election. John C. O'Donnell, county Democratic chairman, could not be reached.

Should a special election be called by Bricker before the May primaries, when new congressmen are to be elected, it is doubtful if the new congressman could be named in less than three months, and by that time the current session of congress would be about at an end.

Lively interest has already been evinced in the regular election by candidates for Mr. Ashbrook's seat. No less than a half dozen Democrats are expected to announce their candidacies, though some may withdraw before the May primary.

One of those to announce is Louis Bromfield, Richland county author. W. E. Purdy, Coshocton county, has also announced for the Democratic nomination, as has Frank Cave, Mansfield, former speaker of the Ohio house.

On the Republican side, J. Harry McGregor, Republican leader in the house, has announced and filed his petitions. Col. Oliver H. Dockery, jr., Newark, is expected to announce as is James A. Glenn, Coshocton. Both tried several times before for the post. Glenn has won the nomination on at least two occasions, but never was able to beat Mr. Ashbrook.

PLANS STOLEN AND RECOVERED

as the general intelligence division to supervise anti-espionage and sabotage activities. This division, he reported, is compiling a master file of all individuals, groups and organizations engaged in these subversive activities, in espionage activities or in any activities that are possibly detrimental to the internal security of the United States."

He said the index had been established on both an alphabetical and geographical basis, so that if the United States should "enter into the conflict abroad we would be able to go into any of these communities and identify individuals or groups who might be a source of grave danger to the security of this country."

He said a translation section had been set up to review various foreign-language material received and secured by the bureau.

Hoover said plans had been made to protect 450 plants, placed on a priority list by the army and navy departments, against subversive attacks by foreign espionage agents or saboteurs, and that 12,000 additional plants would come under the plant-protection program in event of war.

"I have been very much surprised at the absolute lack of protective measures in many of our larger industrial plants. Some of the great plants in the country have utilized no measures against sabotage or destruction of property."

House Committee Approves $267,197,908 for Army, Navy

ROOSEVELT'S PROGRAM GETS GENERAL O. K.

Slash of 5 Millions Made on Recommended Fund; Navy Supplies Sanctioned.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The house appropriations committee approved, in general, today President Roosevelt's recommendations for immediate emergency defense and neutrality outlays and proposed that congress provide $267,197,908 for the army, navy, coast guard and federal bureau of investigation.

The money would go for work already started or expected to be undertaken during the remainder of the fiscal year ending June 30, in connection with neutrality patrols, increases in and training of military personnel, and counter-espionage.

The whole outlay was proposed under the president's proclamation of a state of limited national emergency at the start of European war last September.

Reporting an emergency appropriation bill to the house, the committee cut $4,801,615 from $271,999,523 recommended by the executive branch. The largest reduction was $2,024,572 in the item of food for the army. The committee said there had been an excess appropriated for this purpose in earlier appropriation bills for this fiscal year, making the cut more or less a book-keeping transaction.

The committee's approval of the administration's recommendations almost without change was characterized by some legislators as not giving an accurate indication of the group's economy-mindedness in this election year. The committee whacked away at a number of money measures last session, and subsequent bills later thi term are expected to be a better test of committee sentiment.

Cite 'World Conditions.'

The White Hopse recommendations for the present emergency bill—which the house will consider tomorrow—were backed with the argument that world conditions made them necessary. The appropriations recommended by the committee for the four branches were: Army $116,218,345, navy $145,082,238, coast guard $4,422,325, federal bureau of investigation $1,475,000.

In addition to these appropriations, the committee also approved an authorization for the navy to proceed with purchases of $2,450,000 worth of ordnance supplies — such as torpedoes, guns, ammunition and powder.

The proposed funds would provide 16,969 more enlisted men for the reguuar army, bringing its strength to 227,000; 41,000 officers and men for the National Guard, bringing its strength to 251,000; 28,900 men for the regular navy, bringing its total to 145,000; 6,000 men for the marine corps, raising it to 25,000; and 2,000 for the coast guard raising it to 10,866.

Justice Crater's Widow Collects on Insurance Policies

NEW YORK—(INS)—A $20,500 settlement granted by two insurance companies to the widow of missing Supreme Court Justice Joseph Force Crater today left the mystery of his disappearance 10 years ago the enigma it has always been.

The settlement which ended the widow's suit for double indemnity of $60,000 on the grounds that Crater met a violent end when he disappeared the night of Aug. 6 1930, likewise removed the possibility of legal prying into several mysterious phases of the jurist's life.

Reports of the settlement were confirmed by Emil K. Ellis, the attorney for Mrs. Stella Crater Kunz, the since remarried wife of the judge. When the money is turned over, Ellis said, a notice of discontinuance of the suits against the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York and the Fidelity Life Insurance company of Philadelphia will be filed.

Of the $30,000 in insurance on Crater's life, payment was withheld on one $10,000 policy which had lapsed. Mrs. Kunz will be required to file a bond of $2[illegible] to protect the insurance companies should the judge ever be found alive.

12,693 Shoe Workers Oppose Unionization; Unions Poll Only 2,691 Votes.

(By International News Service)

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y.—John L. Lewis' CIO and William Green's A. F. of L. were both buried today under a 5 to 1 avalanche of votes polled in a labor board election by employes of the Endicott Johnson Shoe corporation against unionization.

The crushing setback administered to the rival efforts of the two unions to organize the Endicott Johnson workers was generally regarded in industrial circles as a tribute to the benevolent policies of the corporation and its founder, ailing, 82-year-old George F. Johnson.

Hundreds of Endicott Johnson workers have been attending special community prayer services for the recovery of Johnson who as a bench foreman took hold of a bankrupt plant employing 200 men and built it over a period of 45 years into a $36,000,000 organization.

On Monday thousands of Endicott Johnson employes paraded through he plants in a mass demonstration against unionization. "We're for George F." and "George F. can't be wrong," their placards read.

The official vote in the nine plants as announced by Russell Miller, NLRB field representative, was:

A. F. of L. Boot and Shoe Workers Union, 1,612; CIO United Shoe Workers of America, 1,079, against union representation, 12,693.

After the polls closed in the second largest election in labor board history, George W. Johnson, president of the corporation, issued a statement urging all employes "to accept the result without demonstration" and "go back to work bearing no ill feeling toward any one."

Galion Dedication Address Stresses Need of Education

GALION—Dedicated last night to the boys and girls of Galion was Galion's newest and most modern school building, the new $110,000 East school construction which was completed early in the fall.

E. N. Dietrich state director of education, was the speaker for the ceremonies.

He told his audience of the various needs in education, and expressed the need of a couple more years of school after the senior year in high school in order to take care of the three to four million idle young people in the nation, and to give them more definite skills to prepare them for activity.

Another need is to teach more about government and what good government consists of, Dietrich continued. He said that a first line of defense for a democratic form of government is the education of boys and girls in good citizenship, and that he believes it is not too late to preserve a democratic form of government in the United States.

Dietrich opened his address by giving a resume of the history of education in the United States.

FIRM TO BUILD $50,000 OFFICE

Humphryes Announces Plans for Second Project Within Year.

Second building expansion project within a year by the Humphryes Manufacturing company was revealed today with the issuance of a building permit for the construction of a $50,000 office structure.

The new building, which will replace present office quarters, will be erected on the northeast corner of East Fifth and Newman streets.

The company only recently completed a three-story warehouse on Newman street at a cost of $50,000 to which the new structure will connect.

The contract for the building already has been let to the Jacob Wolfe construction company which expects to begin work as soon as alterations are made to provide temporary office space.

Officials of the construction company said they will erect one section of the three-story building before tearing down the present structure. They expect to have the work completed by July 1.

STEWART TO RUN

Commissioner Announces He Will Seek Re-election.

County Commissioner Guy Stewart announced today that he would be a candidate for re-nomination at the May primaries.

Stewart, who is serving his first four-year term, is the second commissioner to announce his candidacy. Last week Ray Hout, whose term also expires this year, took out nominating petitions. Both are Democrats.

Stewart, who resides in Monroe township near Lucas, was formerly maintenance superintendent for the state highway department in this district.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Cleveland's 4,000 school teachers, payless since the last week in November, will receive salary checks covering the first half of January next week, George J. Greene, president of the board of education, said today.

Payment of two weeks' salary next week necessitated a $2,500,000 loan in anticipation of tax collections, Greene said.

GERMANS AND ALLIES SPEED UP WAR IN AIR

Nazis Say Bombers Destroyed 8 Ships; London Admits 11 Were Attacked, 2 Sunk.

which were reported sunk by German air raiders yesterday, were still afloat and probably would be brought into port.

The admiralty said no information was available on the casualties on the Danish ships.

The Oakgrove was presumed sunk in a series of German air attacks announced yesterday.

Vessel Hits Mine.

Even as Chamberlain yesterday described the recent quiet in the war with Germany as "the calm before the storm," the 10,002-ton Dunbar Castle was broken in half by a mine off England's southeast coast; 11 ships were assaulted with machine-guns and bombs from the air; and warships were reported hunting a German submarine headquarters near the Canary Islands.

Capt. H. A. Causton and two of the Dunbar Castle's crew were killed; two others were reported missing. Huddled in blankets, the 48 passengers and remainder of the crew of 150 were brought to London early today by rescuers. Nine children and several women were among them.

The Dunbar Castle, which just had begun a voyage for South Africa, was the largest liner mined in coastal waters since the 11,930-ton Japanese ship Tarukuni Maru was sunk Nov. 21.

Many of the survivors were injured, but the total was not ascertained The rush of water into the hole in the side made launching of boats difficult, and the ship broke in half within 20 minutes, just as the last boat got away.

From Rio de Janeiro came a report three submarines attacked the British Steamer Avila Star near the Canary islands, but were beaten off by convoying cruisers, with one submarine sunk.

The Royal Mail Liner Highland Patriot arrived in Rio De Janeiro Monday with a story of escaping a submarine after a two-hour battle in the vicinity of the Canaries Dec. 29.

of partially unemployed workers all their benefits.

3. He increased administrative expense unnecessarily.

4. He sought to change the rule governing computation of benefits instead of enforcing it.

5. He displayed favoritism toward employers at the expense of workmen.

The dispute centers about interpretation of the controversial "rule 8" governing determination of the average weekly wage in deciding the amount of benefits.

The CIO wants benefit payments based on a full-time work week irrespective of whether a workman was employed full time.

Atkinson replied that in many cases this would mean that an unemployed man would draw benefits in excess of his wages during the period of his employment.

He said that on the other hand "extreme employers" have insisted that benefits should be determined by annual earnings divided by 52 to get a weekly wage as the basis of jobless benefits.

Atkinson recently formulated a compromise whereby a man's earnings in the highest quarter of the year are taken as representing his full-time earnings. Then nine per cent of this is taken as the average weekly wage.

He said that the extreme employer method would cost the state $22,000,000 annually: the extreme labor method, $38,000,000; and the compromise he adopted, $30,000,000

"Since 38 states already use the high quarter principle," he added, "I am not in the slightest concerned over the CIO's grotesque and absurd charges."

As for extravagance Atkinson said Ohio "is nationally credited as having the most economical administration among all 48 states and territories having similar laws."

It was the first Russian acknowledgement of a withdrawal. While it added only scant detail on other operations—of a minor nature—the communique was elaborate enough to break a series of laconic announcements of the nothing-to-report variety.

Moscow Admits Reds Withdraw During Battle.

MOSCOW —(U.P.)— An official communique of the Leningrad military headquarters, disseminated today by the official news agency Tass, admitted that Russian troops had withdrawn several kilometers east of Suomusalmi, on the mid-Finland front.

(A kilometer is ⅝ of a mile.)

This first admission of a withdrawal in an area where the Finns had claimed the biggest victory of the Russo-Finnish war was made in a communique covering operations of yesterday, as issued by the Leningrad area which is in charge of direction of operations. It said:

"9th January In the Ukhta direction fighting of infantry units took place as the result of which Russian troops withdrew several kilometers east of Suomusalmi."

(Ukhta is on the Russian side, roughly opposite Suomusalmi. Suomusalmi is 18 miles from the frontier, on the Finnish side).

The communique added that in the Repola and Petrozavodsk directions farther south there had been reconnoitering activities by detachments

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10, 1940.

Whatever else may happen in 1940, it is assured that this is the year the American people come to their census.

Fortunate Democrats—to be able to pay $25 to $100 for a two dollar feed—just to be enabled to hear how well they are doing for themselves.

After all, the temperature may be all a matter of getting accustomed to it—and 15 below zero may not be as cold as we think.

Calling Attention to Hatch Act

ACTUAL operation of the new Hatch Act, banning political activity by federal employes, will be watched with much interest, for, if effective, it is quite likely that similar restrictions will eventually be enacted against other public employes.

The United States civil service commission has issued a circular for display in federal offices throughout the country. It warns federal employes and officeholders—

NOT to serve on or for any political committee or party—

NOT to be an officer of or active in a political club—

NOT to participate in organizing or conducting political meetings—

NOT to be a candidate for any elective office—

NOT to distribute political literature or campaign material of any sort, including even initiative or referendum petitions.

In addition to these emphasized points, the specific prohibitions of the Hatch Act are fully stated.

Application of such restrictions would serve to make 1940 noteworthy as the start of a new era in partisan politics in this country, as the pernicious influence of job-holding politicians has heretofore been much in evidence in advance of primaries and elections.

The advisability of passing laws to apply to employes in state, county and municipal offices is already being seriously considered by several states.

Those Minor Traffic Crashes

THE MORE serious traffic accidents, involving injury or death, have become so common in recent years that little attention is paid to those more frequent "minor crashes" which result only in damage to cars.

The fact that eleven of these were reported to Mansfield police in one 24-hour period was, however, regarded as worthy of mention in yesterday's paper.

While such accidents are "minor," as compared with those which send victims to the hospital or morgue, they are not always so "minor" as some may think, if the cost of repairs and inconvenience of being deprived of the use of a car for several days, or longer, are considered.

Frequently, also, in such cases, the offending motorist is of the type who carries no insurance and who is found to be non-collectible. The victim is therefore quite often put to the expense of having repairs made to his car, however innocent he may have been in the matter.

It has been recommended, in instances of this sort, that the innocent party in accidents involving damage to his car proceed immediately to file an affidavit and cause the arrest of the offending driver, rather than trust in a promise of settlement of the damage caused.

If there is to be any appreciable improvement in the driving habits of some of the habitually reckless Mansfield motorists it is most likely to come through greater public co-operation with police efforts.

War Affects All Nations

WAR in other countries is compelling Sweden, which has been at peace with the world for 125 years, to forego some of its freedom for the sake of defense and preparation for emergency. The parliament has just enacted a compulsory national service law. Under its provisions all Swedes can be called upon to perform specified kinds of work considered to be of national importance. No doubt, in operating this law, care will be taken to disrupt private life and private industry as little as possible, but the drastic law is there.

Sweden and other peace-loving nations have been compelled to divert more and more of their public funds to defensive military uses, though they know it is taking money away from constructive work. They have to tighten their belts and suffer lowered living standards because aggressive dictators have chosen the way of force to perpetuate their own regimes.

Although the aggressors must lose in the end, victors, vanquished and neutrals alike must endure the hardships and economic disruption of war.

Alger Books No Longer Read

SENTIMENTAL persons bewail the fact, disclosed by the American Library association, that young people no longer read the Horatio Alger tales. They imply that today's boys and girls are missing something.

Perhaps the regretful elders ought to take an evening off to re-read a couple of the books they recall with such approval. They might find that the stories seem a little old-fashioned even to them, and certainly too unnatural and stilted to beguile a lively lad of 1940 into a happy world of fiction. It isn't that there's anything wrong with the morals set forth in the Alger books, but lessons of courage and self-reliance today are to get in a different way, through stories of Boy Scouts and young aviators, and so on.

If the library association proved that boys and girls weren't reading at all, or that they wouldn't read anything but the "comics," there would be real cause for anxiety. In the passing of interest in Alger, Henty and some others, there is cause for nothing more than a wistful sigh.

Children In Exile

GREAT BRITAIN is still host to 7,000 or more Basque refugees, a thousand of whom are children. Most of the youngsters will have to remain away from Spain until Franco grants a general amnesty, for they are the children of parents who are either political exiles in Spain or refugees. It is feared that many little Spaniards may never be reunited with their families.

Here is one of the tragedies of the civil war in Spain which reflects more honor on the befriended Basque people than on General Franco and other Spanish dictators. Certainly the children of Spain did not cause the war and do not deserve to be exiled.

An onion is said to be "strong in vitamin A" as well as in other ways.

The best that Opportunity can do is give you a chance.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The story of Artie Shaw is one of the hard luck stories of Broadway. All of it may never be pieced together. Only he could tell it. Only he knows all of it. You can meet any number of guys on Broadway who can give you the "inside" on Shaw. Only, they don't know either. What they know has been told them by others who got it from somebody else.

But this much is known. He was owned by too many people. On the way up he was benefited by people who, legally, took certain percentages of his earnings as reimbursements. And when fame came, you read all sorts of stories how Artie Shaw made $5,000 a week . . . Stories like that.

On many afternoons he earned as much as $4,000 for making just two recordings . . . At least $3,250 of this was net . . . But much of it went to those who owned him . . .

* * *

THIS is only one fractional side of how a young band leader can dig his own grave, if he has to depend on others for support while he is on the way up.

What other factors entered into the explosion that finally caused him to disappear one night—and wind up in Mexico, I haven't the faintest idea.

It took Artie a couple of years, with a spot on Broadway, to beat his way out of obscurity, and then his ascent was pegged to a new arrangement of an old song that had been heard several years before but was a failure. This was "Begin the Beguine," and when Shaw recorded it and put it on the air he had arrived.

This ushered in sponsored shows and big engagements from coast to coast, and, probably more important than anything else, high record sales.

Perhaps he got to brooding while standing up before his band night after night about all that money that was coming in—and going right past him.

IN ANY case, there began those strange disappearances until finally one night Shaw lit out for Mexico, and—at this writing—he is still there.

Knowing nothing of the true circumstances surrounding the signing away of these percentages of his earnings, I have no wish to say anything against the people who are involved. But for the good of future bandleaders, ASCAP, or somebody, could well take a leaf out of the organization of baseball and draw up certain legislation, or reforms, that would protect youngsters who need help, or who are merely naive, and therefore sign away their careers before they arrive. It ought to be illegal to claim a percentage of a man's earnings for more than, say, three years. This idea of sharing an income for life is all out of proportion to the benefit received.

Kids on the way up might well take the career of Artie Shaw to heart.

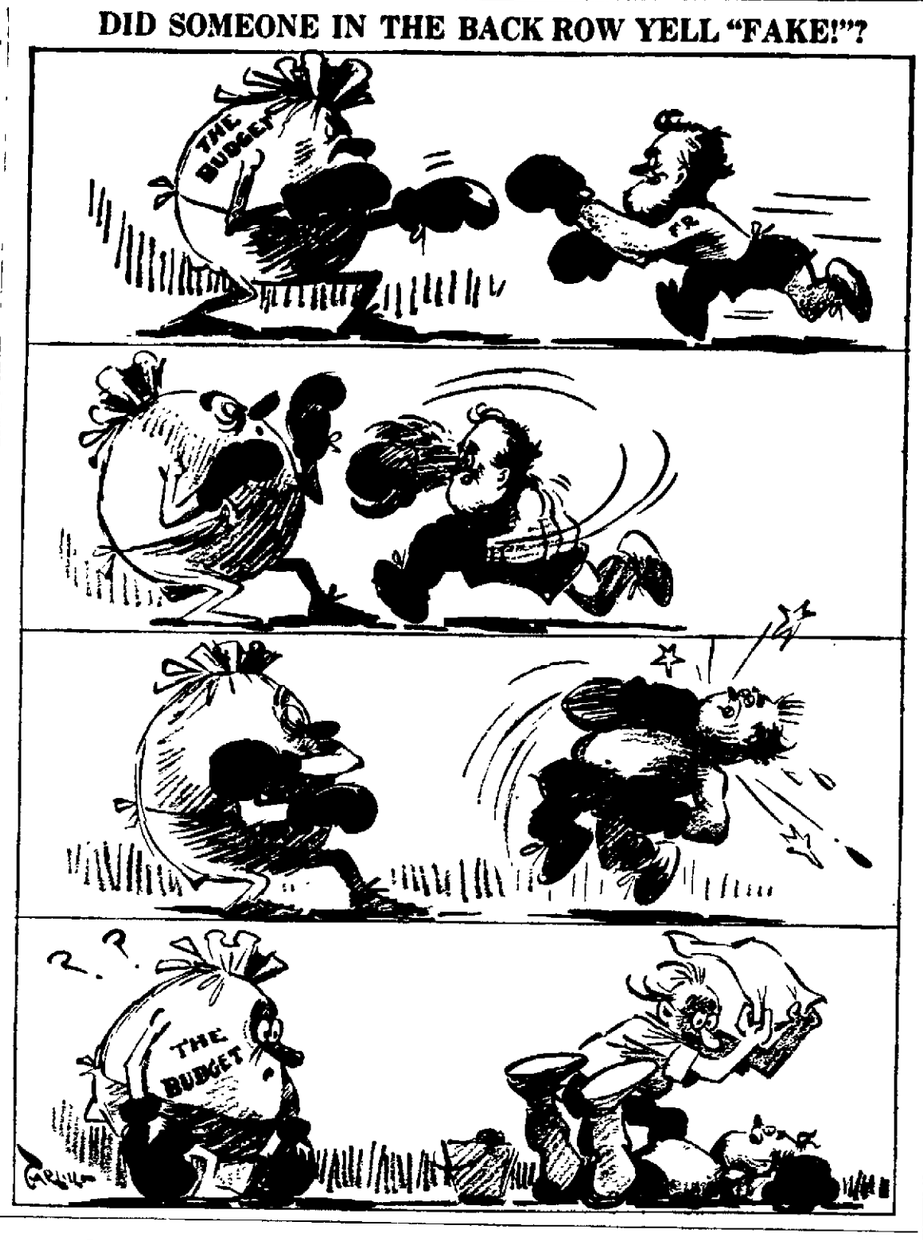
DID SOMEONE IN THE BACK ROW YELL "FAKE!"?



Diplomats Amazed By Message

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Foreign diplomats in Washington are amazed at the character of the comment that has greeted President Roosevelt's message to congress on the "state of the Union." As they see it, the most important parts of the message have been almost ignored. So interested are they about it that many have conferred with colleagues, wondering if their knowledge of the English language, or rather the blind spots which occur when a person learns a new language, have caused them to misinterpret it. So they have run around talking to each other, and especially with colleagues who have been in this country so long that they understand the "American" as well as the "English" language to make sure they have gotten the right viewpoint.

It is rather obvious, for instance, that the German embassy here wired its government that the president was determined to have a place at the peace conference table. Inspired stories printed in Germany and allowed to be sent out of the country by the censors have commented on this phase.

The German reaction is that Roosevelt is anxious to bring pressure to bear at the peace table to prevent too harsh terms being imposed on the defeated Britain and France!

BUT this point does not interest the diplomats nearly so much as what they believe to be an intention on the part of President Roosevelt to further inflame this country against Germany and Russia. They are mildly shocked at the "lack of diplomacy" he showed in pointing out to the American people that it is of vital concern to this country that the rest of the world should not be governed by such rulers as Stalin and Hitler, particularly his insistence that it would affect even domestic affairs in this country.

The diplomats are particularly excited about this sentence from the president's address: "For it becomes clearer and clearer that the future world will be a shabby and dangerous place to live in—even for Americans to live in—if it is ruled by force in the hands of a few." And they were almost as much interested in this one: "We must look ahead and see the effect on our own future if all the small nations throughout the world have their independence snatched from them or become mere appendages to relatively vast and powerful military systems."

And also: "We must look ahead and see the effect on our future generations if world trade is controlled by any nation or group of nations which sets up that control through military force."

THERE is no quarrel on the part of most of the diplomats, it should be stated, with the thoughts behind these words. Naturally the representatives of the smaller countries at Washington are in hearty accord with them. Naturally also the British and French are delighted, and the Finns exuberant. In fact, only the Germans and Russians are displeased.

That is not the point. The point is that they interpret the message as Roosevelt promising congress and the country solemnly that this country is going to keep out of the war, and then in the same breath saying words—almost irrefutable words, as they see them—which are inclined to pave the way to this country going into the war on the side of Britain and France and Finland.

Some of the older ones recall the path this country followed in the World war, gradually working the people up until U. S. participation was inevitable. They wonder if the same pattern is being followed!

But what amazes them is that there has been almost no pacifist criticism of the Roosevelt address.

Posture Problem In Adolescence.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE posture problem in adolescence is due to the perfectly natural fact that there is a disparity between the growth of the skeletal system and the growth of the muscular system. The child simply grows too fast to allow its muscles to keep it in good position; hence we have the "debutante slouch" and the poor boy who is pestered by his father saying, "Throw your shoulders back."

The bad posture of adolescence usually corrects itself. As soon as the body acquires a more mature group of muscles and the skeleton stops growing, the bad posture of the earlier years of adolescence automatically corrects itself.

Too much is probably made of bad posture by fussy parents and sporadic reprimands are likely to make posture worse rather than to make it better. In most instances the scarehead injunctions of teachers, school nurses and social service workers are simply that — scareheads, and nothing more. Many orthopedists have pointed to the grave consequences of bad posture, saying that it displaces the internal organs, crowds the heart and lungs and stomach, etc., without, I think, making a very good point.

Defects May Occur.

However, bad posture can get to the place where actual defects, such as curvature of the spine, may supervene. At some point along the line, then, the hour arrives when treatment must in instituted.

One of the greatest obstacles to posture training is the mental attitude of the child. He is almost invariably annoyed at being compelled to correct something that he doesn't consider important enough to merit attention. This psychological barrier can be overcome in the home or in the school by the use of outline photographs.

Any child who can be caught and photographed from the side, standing in his natural, slouchen position, and then protographed with a voluntary effort to stand erect, can be convinced that posture training is necessary by looking at these two photographs side by side.

Almost all posture defects are in the spine, and very simple exercises, which anyone can devise with the exercise of a little common sense, are all that is necessary to make correction.

The commandments of posture are:

1. Stand tall.
2. Sit tall.
3. Walk tall and chesty, with weight transmitted to the balls of your feet.
4. Draw in your abdomen.
5. Keep your shoulders square.
6. Pull your chin straight back toward your collar button.
7. Flatten the hollow of your back by rolling your pelvis down and back.
8. Spread your shoulders from your hips as far as possible.
9. Lie tall and sleep tall.
10. Think tall.

Qualifies as to Honesty.

Whether Attorney General Murphy has proper legal and judicial qualifications for the Supreme court is now for the senate to decide. But certain qualifications of character have been demonstrated in action in his public life.

Especially since he has been attorney general the people of Missouri have had occasion to realize his aggressive honesty, his high ideals and his freedom from partisan political influence. These qualities were shown in the hard fight against personal and political corruption in Kansas City that has been conducted by the department of justice under the Murphy administration.

Every sort of political pressure was brought on the [illegible] to let up in the [illegible] of [illegible]-placed [illegible]. It has absolutely no effect. [illegible] of proved integrity [illegible] one of the fundamental qualifications for a place on the highest court; as of course it should be, then Frank Murphy is at least so far qualified for an associate justiceship.—Kansas City Star.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The new budget reveals that Roosevelt pruned almost every agency in the government—except his own.

The White House budget actually has been increased by $6,000 rather than decreased, and now calls for $152,750 to run the executive mansion and grounds during the next fiscal year.

The increase, however, is for a new coat of paint. In July and August of this year, the White House will be painted to keep it up to its traditional name, and that paint job will cost $6,000.

Aside from this, the White House budget has not been pruned a penny, although other government agencies were. The amount for "travel and entertainment" remains at $30,000, as against $25,000 two years ago.

Roosevelt is the most traveled president since Taft, and the cost of going to Hyde Park and back, plus Warm Springs and other trips costs a good bit more than the amount allowed in the budget—despite the fact that the budget was increased by $5,000 two years ago.

The Roosevelts also entertain much more than their predecessors, and exceed their budget on this. In both cases—travel and entertainment—the president and his wife dip into their own pockets to make up the deficit.

Wages of the White House staff total about $100,000. The housekeeper gets $3,300, the gardener $2,500, the first cook $1,620, plus a wide assortment of other cooks, butlers, kitchen helpers, housemen and maids.

The bill for heat, light, and electric power (to drive the elevator, mechanical appliances in the kitchen, etc.) is $11,200. The laundry bill is $4,800.

Gentleman Dewey.

NEWSMEN covering Tom Dewey recently quizzed him about the report on Harry Bridges, West Coast labor leader. Specifically, they asked the young GOP white hope if he favored deporting Bridges.

"I can't comment on that," replied Dewey.

"Why not?"

"Oh, I couldn't hit a lady."

Note—Madame Secretary Perkins must pass on the referee's report which found that Bridges was not a Communist.

NLRB Housecleaning.

THE PRESIDENT is quietly out to houseclean the National Labor Relations board in order to save it from an irate congressional shellacking.

He believes that if he replaces Chairman J. Warren Madden and Commissioner Edwin S. Smith with less controversial figures, congressional hostility will be assuaged and the clamor for revision of the law itself will be stemmed. Roosevelt is dead set against any tampering with the law.

Replacing Madden presents no difficulties, since his term expires this August. An able lawyer he will be given a judicial post, in fact was one of three possibilities considered for the judgeship on the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia vacated by new Solicitor General Francis Biddle. Most likely appointment for Madden is a vacant seat on the federal bench in the District of Columbia.

Smith, however, is a problem. His term doesn't expire until next year and he is a determined fighter. Unless he can be persuaded to quit voluntarily, there is no way to remove him except by preferring charges against him. Roosevelt has no intention of doing this because, despite criticism, he rates Smith highly.

He concedes, however, that Smith has become an NLRB storm center and that in the interest of preserving the law it would be best if he stepped out. The question is whether he can be persuaded.

* * *

Roosevelt Joke.

THE PRESIDENT loves a joke, and he had one with Representative Joe Martin, able little Republican floor leader, just before delivering his message to congress.

Martin was a member of the reception committee that received Roosevelt in the speaker's lobby, just off the house. As they shook hands, Roosevelt whispered in Martin's ear:

"Tell your boys they had better be on their guard, Joe. I've got a couple of traps for them."

"Thanks for the tip, Mr. President," chuckled Martin. "It's nice to be warned in advance. I only wish your legislative leaders were as generous."

* * *

GOP Farm Solution.

GOP chief's on Capitol Hill aren't advertising it yet, but they think they've found the answer to the party's No. 1 campaign problem—a safe farm plank.

Four separate groups have been racking their brains over this conundrum for months. The solution which the leaders think is the real McCoy is the work of one of these groups—the committee of 46 farm-district congressmen appointed by Republican Floor Leader Joe Martin.

Except in a few Midwestern centers where it held public hearings the committee has attracted little attention. But it has been active in sounding out agricultural sentiment. Furthermore, its members are practical politicians and some of them, such as Chairman Cliff Hope of Kansas, are among the most astute strategists in congress.

Principal stumbling block of the GOP in the past has been how to blast the AAA, without arousing the farmer's fear that the Republicans will scuttle AAA benefit payments. But here is the Hope committee's secret formula for performing this trick:

Under the present AAA system growers get benefit checks on two counts: (1) for reducing acreage, (2) for planting a soil-conserving crop. Taking advantage of the average farmer's antipathy to letting land lie idle, the Hope committee proposes that the GOP platform advocate less acreage reduction and more payments for soil conservation.

In other words, the Republicans would promise the farmer the same amount of money from the government that he gets now, but it would be for "soil conserving" and not crop cutting.

Again, shrewdly playing on popular sentiment, the Hope committee would link this shift with national defense on the argument that with Europe destroying itself, the agricultural resources of the United States must be built up to meet any contingency.

Note—Hope showed his political adroitness by allowing all farmers who appeared at the committee's hearing to have their full say without interruption or cross-examination, with the result that they departed singing the praises of the committee. Reason behind this strategy was a lesson Hope learned from a Democratic farm committee several years ago, which heckled witnesses and aroused a lot of resentment.

Two Years Old

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THIS column is two years old today. Even those who shook their pitying heads when it first appeared, new, red-faced and rawboned, have to admit that the kid has surprising tenacity and a lot of nerve.

When I was younger and more solitary than I am now, I wrote a diary for my own diversion. It was as wordy and highflown as my mood happened to dictate—mostly a record of woods experiences or thoughts about the classic poets. Soon after we were married my wife read some of it, one day. She laughed and cried—from mirth and from sympathy.

"Some of that is good," she told me. "I hope you'll keep it up and use it sometime."

Three years ago, in an inadvertant moment, I remarked to a family connection and friend, "I have a notion, some of these days, to start a daily feature for the newspapers."

He is older than I, educated and capable. His work has brought him before the public for many years. He looked at me in frank amazement. "Brainier men than you have tried that and failed," he said. "You can't do it."

When I told my wife what he had said, she was a comfort. She vouchsafed the opinion that, judging from some of the things she had read—and enjoyed—brains mightn't be so very necessary for column writing. She said I was as stubborn as a bulldog with a bone, and she bet if I ever got started writing, and anybody would read it, I could keep it up. So that was that.

She is my critic and collaborator. I can neither spell nor typewrite. She can do both. We find this hobby one of the most enjoyable ventures we have tried. When someone says—as two persons did in the same day, recently—"There's nearly always something there that a person wants to remember," we are happy.

The things we write are like an old fashioned family picnic where each reader brings his own hamper. What he has to eat depends upon what is in his basket—we furnish the applesauce. What I'm trying to say is that Nature's "various language" is as wide and deep and high as the experiences of all of us. Her single touch makes the whole world kin.

Two years isn't long, of course. At two a child can scarcely wipe his own nose adequately, but he gets around, and gets a second look tagged out in grownup clothes. "Happy birthday," you say? Thank you.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Close To My Heart.

So close I hold this house, my heart
Knows every part of it,
So close that far away I shut
My eyes and see each bit

Of detail . . . chair in which she rocked
Me, long and long ago,
My mother; old high mantel shelf,
Clear in soft candle glow;

Low hassocks, rest for weary feet,
So close this house to me
That many times, when miles away,
I'm here. When memory

Transports me through the space between
And I am with you here,
So real is this I reach to touch
These things we hold so dear.

TELL BILL GOODBYE + + + + + +

By MARIE BLIZARD

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER FORTY-THREE

Chris clung to Sonny. "You'd better go in and see if it's all right first," she said, trying to peer through the falling snow at the bleak house.

Fabienne had the same thought, along with a good many qualms, now that they had arrived at Bill's place in the country. Fabienne had more than the usual share of courage, but the thought of what the dark house might hold was disquieting.

"All right," Fabienne agreed, getting a flashlight out of the car, showing none of her own reluctance to enter the house alone.

She focused the light on the door lock after flashing it briefly over the windows. At least none of them was broken. The door opened creakily under her touch and she made a circle of light in the room. Nothing came out of the shadows, but there was the sound — loud in the silence — of small feet scurrying in the walls and the room beyond the living room into which she stepped. "Only mice, Fabienne," she told herself reassuringly.

There were candles ranged along the mantle over the hearth. She lit them and went out to the car.

"It's all right," she said, taking the child from its mother's arms.

"We'll starve here," Chris said plaintively, following her through snow that was already four or five inches deep.

"There's food here, and blankets," Fabienne said, hastily closing the door with her foot to keep out the icy draft.

"And it's terribly cold," Chris said, shivering.

"Keep your things on until I get a fire going."

Sonny was awake and beginning to whimper. Chris said, "I'll take care of him. I'll put him to bed on one of the cots. You can have the other. I'll sit up."

Fabienne didn't hear her; she'd gone into the kitchen with one of the candles to take a quick inventory. She would need little; they would be there only for the night, until she could get to Bill.

She piled logs and kindling into a wood basket, placed a can of soup and a can of condensed milk in a pan and put them on top of the logs and carried it into the living room.

"I'll give you a hot drink and put you to bed, Chris," she said kneeling before the hearth in which the remainder of the fire Bill had built still lay.

"All I want is a drink of water. I'm so thirsty!"

WATER. There wasn't any water in the house. They'd brought it with them when they came up for the winter party.

"I'll get you some when the fire gets going," Fabienne said.

It took a long time for the fire to blaze, and when it did the room was filled with smoke and smudges of black were rubbed on Fabienne's weary face. She looked at her wrist watch as she got up. It was a little after half-past two, but it seemed years since she had returned to her apartment and found Chris gone.

She went out to the kitchen and got a large stew pan and went outdoors with it. She filled it with clean snow and brought it back, placing it over the burning logs to melt. "I wish I'd been a girl scout when I was a child," she said grimly.

When the snow melted, she poured a quantity of the water into one small sauce pan, the remainder into another. "I'll get more for drinking water," she said.

Chris had found a can opener and sat with it in her hand, a blank, happy expression on her flushed face.

Fabienne took it away from her gently and opened the soup and the milk which she soon had steaming. "You both need something hot," she said, feeding the milk to Sonny from a cup and telling Chris to get a soup bowl for herself.

The hot soup, and the sleeping drug that was still in her system, made Chris sleepy at once. She fell back on the cot with no protests and allowed Fabienne to cover her with the warm blankets. Sonny was long since in a rosy sleep.

Taking only one blanket, Fabienne wrapped herself in it and curled up, as nearly as one could curl up, in a hard wooden rocker.

She awoke at daybreak, believing herself in a dream, only to realize too soon that it was not a dream. She put fresh logs on the dying fire and sank back into uncomfortable slumber.

When she woke again it was broad daylight, nearly 9 o'clock, but there was only a grayish light in the room. With foreboding, she shook off her blanket, stretched her aching muscles in a long cat stretch, and went to the window. As she had feared, the snow had not let up. Great flakes as thick as cotton fell from low clouds as if the world were to be buried in snow forever after. It was impossible to see more than four or five feet away, or to pierce that enveloping white with the eye.

Fabienne went out to the kitchen for another load of wood, saw that there was plenty to last through the day, and brought it back to the living room.

Sonny fought off his blankets and sat up, presenting a bright little face to her. "Sonny wants his brekfuss," he announced.

"Shhh, darling! Don't wake mummie. I'll get your breakfast for you."

"Sonny a good boy," he said.

"Of course you are," she said softly, tiptoeing over to look at Chris, who was sleeping soundly, a flush on her pale cheeks, great dark circles under her eyes. "Poor kid," Fabienne said to herself.

The was a can of oatmeal in the kitchen and three more cans of condensed milk. Fabienne poured some of the cereal into a sauce pan with some water and put it over the logs. "I hope you don't get tired of oatmeal, darling," she said to Sonny, who was contentedly playing with the flashlight. "It looks as if you were going to have nothing else to eat."

While it was cooking, she went out to the car. It was bedded in three feet of snow on the north side. She'd have to start digging out soon. She doubted if she could walk to a place where she could find a telephone and get through to Bill.

She'd remembered that there was a robe under the folded rumble seat and heaved and hauled until she pulled it up. Her robe was there and an old coat. She dragged them out, pulling the latter away from something it was caught on. It came free, and she saw that it had been caught on her portable radio that she had forgotten was in the car. She picked that up and lugged it back.

Chris was awake, sitting up, shivering in her blankets. "I'll get up and help you," she said.

Fabienne was tinkering with the radio. "Stay where you are," she commanded. "How do you feel?"

"Terrible. My bones ache and my chest hurts. I think I've got a cold."

"I'll fix that up. Listen . . ." The radio emitted a series of squawks and squeals. "It's just 10 o'clock. Time for news."

She twirled the dial experimentally and then a voice came over—

". . . morning to institute a nation-wide search for the missing child and mother. For further details," the announcer concluded the news broadcast, "keep tuned to this station. Hourly bulletins will keep the nation in touch with the developments in the most sensational kidnaping since the—"

The radio was suddenly dead.

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

WHAT'S NEW? Why, the smart dress with an extra pair of sleeves. . . . It's fashioned of black crepe along fitted princess lines with numerous unpressed pleats in the skirt . . . the neckline is trimmed with white pique and a black and white polka dot bow. . . .

Marianne

The sleeves button on at the shoulder—one pair, full and wrist length, is dotted to match the bow, while the short puffed ones are black and piped with white pique.

* * *

Rosewood is the leading new shade for early spring wear. . . . I saw one pretty frock of this tone in a Mansfield shop yesterday. It was cut along princess lines and brightened with a deep yoke embroidered in pastel wool yarn. . . . Another dress with a background of this color was printed with a tiny black floral design and made with a flaring skirt, square neck and wide stitched girdle of the same material. . . . A costume suit in this shade of wool combines a dress trimmed by sunburst tucks at the neckline with a fitted coat, lightened with a fluffy collar of lynx dyed fox.

* * *

And speaking of costume suits, they're quite smart right now—especially for travel and southern vacation wear. . . . One attractive ensemble has a gypsy rose (a lighter shade than rosewood) dress and a navy blue wool coat, lined with the same material as the dress. . . . An aqua suit with matching coat and dress trimmed with quilting, I saw yesterday, was also smart.

* * *

WARM THINGS FOR COLD DAYS: Knee warmers of soft wool are sure to keep you comfy whether you're downtown shopping or enjoying such snow sports as skiing, coasting or skating. . . . Snug wool slipperettes will assure you of warm feet on these chilly winter evenings—they come in three cute styles and a variety of colors such as green, rust, blue, pink, aqua and black.

* * *

If you're one of the fortunates who's wearing silver fox this season, you'll be delighted with the new silver fox hose—they're to be worn expressly with this fur and resemble it as much as any material could. They have a lustrous satin finish.

* * *

THIS is the time of year when complexions seem to need a pick-up, and consequently many of the stores are showing preparations for just that purpose. . . . Beauty sachets are really little poultices, which, when steeped in hot water and held over affected parts, will draw out blackheads and other similar blemishes. . . . A fine mask called Velva Cream will brighten any tired winter complexion—a thin film of it on the face for about 20 minutes refines the pores of the skin and gives it firmness and color. . . . Ten o' Six lotion is a grand skin freshener, astringent and cleanser, and a cover lotion produced by the same manufacturer serves as a lasting powder base and disguises blemishes.

PERHAPS the weather isn't just right today for a discussion of umbrellas, but the local stores have some quite attractive ones on display now—some combine mellosheen and silk in plain material and printed, while other all-silk models are of plain and printed blocks.

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.
